cordially invite you to participate in a roundtable discussion on

A Just Energy Transition in South Africa: Sources, Ownership and Related Matters

The recent discussions amongst stakeholders about South Africa's much needed just energy transition show again that ownership within the energy sector is a controversial topic. There is an ever pressing desire to have ownership not only in the hands of the state or private business, but to ensure that communities and workers benefit directly from the energy sector as well. There are several questions that beg answering when considering ownership in this context: How should the status quo and distribution of ownership be changed? How can various stakeholders work together on the topic of ownership? How do we prevent differing views on ownership becoming an obstacle to progressive change? What are potential ownership models of the future? How do we ensure that energy production creates adequate job opportunities?
